

Legal Interpreters Member Section

We now have a new RID member section specifically for interpreters working in legal and court settings. The purpose of this Legal Interpreters Member Section (LIMS) is to provide a forum for all interpreters both deaf and hearing who interpret in legal and court settings – to collaborate, network, discuss topics relevant to this specialty, and to provide recommendations and input to RID regarding this field of specialized interpreting.

Interpreters who work in legal and court settings may join this member section online at www.rid.org – log in and click on ‘manage your profile’, and at the bottom of the page under ‘Sections’ you can click on ‘Interpreters in Legal and Court Settings’.

There is currently an online discussion group, ASL_legal_terps, and anyone who is working in legal and court settings may send an email to ASL_legal_terps-subscribe@yahoogroups.com to join. This member section will be presenting a legal conference just prior to the RID national conference in 2009 – check out www.ASLLIMS.com for registration information.
